

Southern Gold Coast workshop series
First workshop next Tuesday 6 October 10am to 12.30pm

“I would recommend this course to every person who has an opportunity to do it for the good of their own business, their local area and their region as a whole.”

– Lyn Gampe, Your Choice Travel

Local Living Economy
how a vibrant local economy builds successful small business

Venue: The Ecovillage, Currumbin.

Cost: $15 per workshop including light refreshments

The Local Living Economy model demonstrates how the economic power that resides within a local community can be strengthened and new opportunities unleashed by connecting people in ways that support businesses and regional resilience and innovation.

The workshop will provide an introduction to sustainability planning and look at case studies and information from our region and around the world that demonstrate an alternative to corporate globalization with opportunities for networking and collaboration.

Comprehensive sustainability planning resources included.

Facilitated by Dr Sally MacKinnon, sustainability educator with the Ethos Foundation.

Additional workshops on:

Wednesday 28 October: Resource Sustainability

– Minimising your business risks and lightening your eco-footprint

Tuesday, 17 November: Strategic Sustainability – How networking, collaboration and cooperation can leverage your business and the next steps in your sustainability planning.
